ONE MILLION DOLLARS TO THE NATIONAL FUND?

At the moment of writing we learn that the Zionist Convention at Winnipeg has pledged the sum of one million dollars to the National Fund for the redemption of soil in Palestine. A considerable sum has already been subscribed, and Toronto Zionists have contributed a handsome portion.

Details are still lacking. But if the report is true, Canadian Zionists will have to their credit a very praiseworthy achievement. Canadian Zionists were the first to adopt the Keren Hayesod and they showed the way to their United States brethren. The present effort on behalf of the National Fund is a tremendous undertaking which will command the admiration and support of all Canadian Jews. The local Zionist leaders are announcing for Toronto Menachem Ussishkin, the strongest man in the Zionist Organization, and he has a host of admirers who are eager to see and hear him.

TREES IN THE "WALD"

Next week Jews throughout the world will commemorate the anniversary of the death of Dr. Herzl, the founder of modern Zionism. No other Jew of recent times has so captured the imagination of the Jewish people as has Dr. Herzl.

It has become a custom to pay tribute to the memory of the venerated leader in a concrete manner by buying trees in the Herzl Wald. Toronto Jews have always observed the occasion in an appropriate manner, and no doubt they will respond generously to the National Fund appeal this year.

FORD'S RECANTATION

The latest Ford incident presents a remarkable situation. Henry Ford is the richest man in the world. His fabulous wealth, and the legends which have grown up about his personality have made him one of the outstanding figures of the generation. For some years he has been actively engaged in a campaign of slander and vituperation against the Jewish people throughout the world. Report had it that he was even associated with the violent anti-Semitic groups in Europe, and was financing their activities. Of a sudden this man writes a letter, addressed to one of the recognized leaders of American Jewry, humbly acknowledging that he had grievously sinned against the Jewish people, unequivocally apologizing for his former conduct, and solemnly promising to change his attitude and course in the future. And the letter has an undoubted ring of sincerity. A tremendous power, unchallenged in the exercise of its arrogance within its own domain, suddenly wavers in the presence of some unvisible force emanating from another universe of values and it bows in the humility of confession, and surrenders to the subtle strength of the other.

It is not common for men of action and achievement to confess errors. Once they commit themselves to an attitude or to a course of conduct they never go back on themselves. In their heart of hearts they may realize that they are on the wrong track. But their pride, or their established position, will not allow them to admit their fallibility. The impetus of their ambition will drive them on

HENRY FORD'S APOLOGY TO THE JEWS

By RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

"I deem it to be my duty as an honourable man to make amends for the wrong done to the Jews as fellowmen and brothers by asking their forgiveness."

These words are the climax of that most startling unusual and welcome apology which Henry Ford made to the Jews of the world. For a number of years the Dearborn Independent, created and owned by Henry Ford, and voicing what the world presumed were his personal opinions, has been waging a vicious campaign against Jews. Every bit of mediaeval superstition which had survived about the Jews, every scrap of slander forged in the soul of bigoted fanatics, every bogey which blind hatred had spawned were restated as truth by the editorial writers of Henry Ford's paper. That the Jews cause wars, and are arch-pacifists, control the capital of the world and are plotting for economic revolution, etc., etc., were pawned off as sound scientific facts. Even the "Protocols of the Wise Men of Zion," those spurious documents forged by the minions of the Russian czar in the interests of his tyrannical designs, were resurrected from their graves that their skeletons might stalk the earth.

When it all happened the Jewish world was astounded. After all it was in the twentieth century, in an age of scientific research, and in the United States, a land comparatively free of anti-Semitism, and through Henry Ford, a man of apparent liberal tendencies, that this reactionary movement was brought to life. No one could account for it. Many guesses were advanced as to the motives which led Ford to his anti-Semitic campaign, but unless Ford himself speaks out, no one will know the story. The difficulty about it all was that Ford had tried to appear as a great benefactor, a man who tried to end the last war. How could such a man put himself in league with the most reactionary elements of Europe as the anti-Semites? That is the problem.

In my editorial in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW of January 14, 1927, I made the statement: "I believe Ford is just a man of good intentions who has gone astray, a kindly liberal fallen in the hands of bad counsellors." It seems as if that opinion is now verified. Ford in his apology stated that he did not realize the import of his editors' articles, and now that his friends have pointed out his errors, he is ready to make amends. I do not believe for one moment that Ford has ulterior motives in asking forgiveness of the Jew. I do not believe ambition promoted him. I believe he is a simple, honest man who has been misled, realizes it and is big enough to admit it. It did require courage and humility for this perhaps, the world's richest man to issue a public apology and to confess his ignorance about the policies of his own publication. It was a manly thing for him to have done. Though the damage he has done to the Jew throughout the world is incalculable, his apology is welcome and the Jews will forgive him.

Will anti-Semitism now cease in the United States? Hardly. Ford was but a mouthpiece of the anti-Semitic movement, its tool and not its creator. Anti-Semitism will not cease, but many sincere humble folk, who were impressed by the sensational charges of the of continental capitals and now she has a book full of London re-engagements. She started with a recital in the Aeolian Hall, which was a triumph musically. She played at parties arranged by Lady Beaverbrook, Lady Mond, the Hon. Mrs. Lionel Guest and Mrs. Bossom. She privately visited H.R.H. Princess Eleanor Victoria and also H.R.H. Princess Beatrice, and played at Kensington Palace. The Duchess of Devonshire and the Dowager Countess of Minto, both of them ladies of former governors-general of Canada, have been to her recitals. Miss Ballon went with Sir George and Lady McLaren Browne to the home of Lord and Lady Clarendon. Miss Ballon was trained at McGill University and also in New York and Switzerland. Her musical favourites are the masters of the old school—Bach, Beethoven and Chopin. "I really think they are the new school nowadays," she said, "because people are only just rediscovering all that the old masters have to say. But you must not think I am against modern music. I play it and love it though I prefer the old."

Admiral Horthy, Hungarian Regent, raised Colonel Martin Zoeld to the rank of General. General Zoeld is the first Hungarian Jew to bear this title, which was given to him in recognition of his great services during the World War and after.

BETHLEN ATTACKS JEWISH DEPUTY

The Hungarian Parliament was in an uproar when the question of ratifying the treaty with Italy came up. It was during this skirmish that Count Bethlen, the Premier, lost his head and had to be called to order by the chairman of the House. A Jewish Deputy, Varney by name, declared that the real Hungary does not want an alliance with Fascist Italy. Bethlen then shouted back to him, "You yourself are not Hungarian. What do you know about it?" This was considered insulting and out of order by the presiding officer and the Count was rebuked.

Deputy Bela Fabian recently moved a resolution in the Hungarian House aiming at the abolition of the numerus clausus, and he insisted that the resolution was in accordance with the repeated promises made by the Government and by the various candidates for election in the recent Parliamentary elections. The resolution, however, was not supported by the Government representatives, and the Minister of Education, Count Klebelsberg, declared that the Government is of the opinion that the numerus clausus should be modified, but that it was impossible at present to set a definite date for its abolition.

Dr. Joseph A. Rosen, the head of the colonization work in Russia carried on by the Joint Distribution Committee, will arrive in America very shortly. He will spend the summer in this country and will return to Russia in October.

GOOD NAME IS DISPUTED

For quite a long time the white man has taken it for granted that the word "Muskoka" was derived from the name of the famous Indian doctor or conjurer Misquedoh; but one who takes as his authority the "Atlas," written by W. E. Hamilton, Esq., has disputed this through the columns of the press and claims that "as Amerigo filched the honour of sponsorship of this continent from Columbus, so the crafty conqueror Misquedoh (Clear Sky) has been chronicled as the god-father of Muskoka, in place of the undaunted chieftain Mesqua Ukee."

To those who know it, however, the Muskoka district will always be the land of "clear skies" and sparkling waters, and to these, as to others, who would this year make their first acquaintance with this most glorious and convenient holiday resort district, the Canadian Pacific Railway offers a very complete service. Write W. Fulton, District Passenger Agent in Toronto, or ask any Agent for particulars and handsomely illustrated booklets and folders.

The story of how Henry Ford ordered the publication of articles hostile to the Jewish people discontinued permanently was accompanied in the New York Tribune with a picture of the man smiling broadly, as indeed he should and every one with him who is not laughing outright. It is a novel experience to see a man who deliberately wants to pose as a liar and a fool.

That Ford regrets the articles published against the Jews may be true in the light of the fact that politicians four years ago decided that his hostility toward the Jews was an obstacle in his path to the Democratic nomination for the presidency, again desired. But who will believe that he was "deeply mortified" when he "learned to his great regret" that Jews generally resent these publications and regard Ford as their enemy? After all these years of vituperation and unreasoning attack he says he learned for the first time lately "through trusted friends that the character of the charges made in his paper justified the righteous indignation entertained by Jews everywhere" toward him. He never before appreciated even the general nature to say nothing of the details of these utterances or he would have forbidden their circulation without a moment's hesitation because he is so fully aware of the virtues of the Jewish people as a whole. He has been "greatly shocked" by his examination of the files of the Dearborn Independent and the pamphlets entitled "The International Jew" and "wants to make amends by asking forgiveness for the harm unintentionally committed." All this time he was too busy to devote personal attention to all his activities or keep informed as to the contents of the Dearborn Independent. And furthermore his apology and retraction were made on his own initiative and wholly in the interest of right and justice and in accordance with what he regards as his solemn duty as a man and a citizen.

Among New Yorkers approached by the New York World on Ford's recantation, "many declined to comment and among these there was an obvious hesitation to accept the statement at its face value." It is noteworthy that of those interviewed the Gentiles were more skeptical and cared less what their true opinions would look like in print than the Jews, most of whom waxed oily, maudlin and mealy-mouthed. The pastor of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church thought that Ford's "repudiation of his charges would be a great consolation to all right-minded citizens." The rector of St. John Evangelist Episcopal Church thought it was "extraordinary that Mr. Ford should be the only one who was unaware of the hostility that his paper aroused." Mayor James J. Walker said it was gratifying to know that Ford had dictated a change in a policy which was offensive. Henry Alexander, assistant district attorney, said: "The American public is hardly likely to be fooled by Mr. Ford's belated efforts. The collapsing sales of his present model indicate that Ford realizes that a bigoted attack on the Hebrew element was commercially as well as morally resented by all fair-minded citizens. The issuance of an apology coincidental with the announcement of a new model will therefore fail to achieve his object."

David N. Mosessohn, of the Jewish Tribune, was the only one among the Jews to give interviews who spoke his mind sharply: "The baleful influence of the anti-Semitic articles which, in book form, have been systematically circulated by the tens of thousands in many lands and have been translated into many tongues cannot be effaced by a mere apology. The spirit of American fair play should inspire Mr. Ford to impose upon himself the solemn duty of taking steps to counteract that influence with the same energy and interprise that was employed in his name to spread the ideas he now acknowledges were false." Benjamin Winter, rich real estate dealer, and president of the Federation of Polish Jews in America, said in a telegram to Mr. Ford, actually, that Ford's statement "reveals a bigness of character" and that Ford "is living up to one of the finest traditions of the Jewish faith, the Talmudic teaching that the height of nobility is reached by the man who voluntarily repents of his mistakes." Judge Morris Koenig said that Ford is entitled to that honour that comes to one who has the courage to proclaim justice when he finally recognizes it! Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish Committee (with whom two friends of Ford conferred before the apology was published to find out what Ford could do to square himself), said after the retraction that forgiveness is a Jewish trait and that this would be manifest in his attitude. Aside from Marshall, who was concerned directly, no Jewish leader gave an expression of opinion.

In Washington Ford's abandonment of the theory of a vast Jewish plot to dominate the world and his declaration that the so-called "protocols of the Wise Men of Zion" on which he based his attacks are exploded forgeries, is taken by politicians to be his first step toward entering the 1928 campaign for the presidency, says the World. That he made the Hearst papers his vehicle for the dissemination of his change of heart is interpreted as indicating that Hearst will push Ford's candidacy. It is known that four years ago politicians told him how inexpedient his attacks on the Jews were and that he refused then to discontinue them or tone them down. Throughout the country, also, is the opinion that the flivver business is not what it once was or might be now and that Ford's recent closing of retail stores in Detroit and this new benevolence toward the Jews are all of a piece in his desire to remake an adverse public opinion. In time for 1928 Ford is going to be made a good of kindness, open-mindedness and greatness. Already the Hearst papers are saying that Henry Ford, by his apology to a race he has wronged, has "healed a sore in our national life and set an example in manliness which millions will heed." And a lot of other stuff remains to be written for morons to read and accept. With thinking people it's not likely this new coat of contrition and his verbal cut-glass flower-holders will get by. Do what you will, can you disguise a Ford?

Cohen—Lewis

Beth Jacob Synagogue was the scene of the wedding, Rabbis Levine, Werner and Rev. Levinson officiating, when Rae, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Lewis, Myrtle Avenue, this city, was united in marriage to Harry Cohen, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cohen, of Detroit. The pulpit was banked with flowers, palms and ferns, as were also the pews, which held floral decorations. To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Mrs. Morley Goldblatt, accompanied by Miss Jessie Levine, the bride entered the synagogue with her father, in her frock of white satin, trimmed with real lace and velvet petals, the gown being made in mid-Victorian fashion. Her veil was of rose point lace, worn in coronet style, caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of Butterfly roses, orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, from which hung white satin streamers. She also wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The attendants wore gowns fashioned alike, in pastel shades of taffeta and net with rings of flowers on the dresses, which were made in period style, with tight bodices and long-hooped skirts. All wore picture hats, in shades to match their frocks, with contrasting velvet streamers and silver slippers and stockings. They carried old-fashioned nosegays. Miss Rose Halpern was maid-of-honour, and wore coral; Miss Hilda Goldblatt, blue; Miss Molly Treister, orchid; Miss Sophie Cohen, sister of the groom, rose, and Miss Anne Freedman (Toronto), in peach. The flower girls, Zelma Lewis, niece of the bride, and Miss Cohen, niece of the groom, were in peach georgette over green slips, and carried baskets of Sweetheart roses, which were strewn in the path of the bride. Arnold Cohen was ring-bearer, and wore a suit of white satin. Abe Cohen, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Fred Cohen, brother of the groom; J. and L. Lewis, brothers of the bride, and Mr. Cohen, of Detroit. The gifts to the bridesmaids and maid of honour were bracelets, and to the soloists and accompanist, bottles of perfume; to the best man and ushers, silver cigaret lighters were given. The flower girls received necklaces, and the ring-bearer, a ring. A reception and wedding supper were held in the I.O.O.F. temple. Mrs. Lewis, mother of the bride, received in a black sequin gown, and corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. She was assisted by Mrs. Cohen, mother of the groom, who was wearing a gown of flowered chiffon over blue flat crepe, and corsage of orchids, lilies-of-the-valley and roses. Later Mr. and Mrs. Cohen left for a trip to New York, Washington and Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a sport dress of beige crepe, hand-drawn, beige kasha coat, trimmed with baby fox fur, with close-fitting hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Cohen will live in Detroit.

LOEW'S

"The Callahans and the Murphys," Kathleen Norris' lilting romance of Irish life, will be presented at Loew's next week. Sally O'Neil scores a new triumph as Ellen Callahan, heroine of the comical romance. She and Larry Gray supply the romance, in a delicate little love story—with just a bit of a heart throb, that is woven through the collection of chuckles, giggles and guffaws that cram the picture. For laughs—there is Marie Dressler, famous for "Tillie's Punctured Romance," in the role of the redoubtable "Mrs. Callahan" in constant battle with the sharp-tongued "Mrs. Murphy," as played by Polly Moran. Gertrude Olmsted, as the beautiful "Monica Murphy," has another bit of love interest—with the comical Eddie Gribbon as her lover—a combination so incongruous that in itself it is comedy to gaze upon. Five vaudeville acts will also be offered.

Why People are using More Ice

EACH year the ice business grows in volume, because housewives are making more intelligent and adequate use of ice.

No longer is it considered economy to stint the use of ice. Women realize that it is just the opposite of economy to risk the spoilage of expensive food, to save a few cents' worth of ice.

Ice is an investment. Don't waste it in an inefficient or worn-out ice box. Have a good box—keep it one-half to two-thirds full all the time. Your food will stay fresh, taste better, and you will save money.

WEDDINGS

Nathanson–Lorie

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lorie, 48 Clarendon Road, the wedding took place Monday afternoon, of their daughter, Lily Lorie, and Henry Lewis Nathanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Nathanson, of Minneapolis, Minn. To the strains of the wedding march, with violin obligato played by Luigi Romanelli, the bride entered the room with her father, and proceeded to the canopy fashioned from orange blossoms and pink garden roses, and banked with palms and ferns, under which the ceremony was performed by Rabbi F. M. Isserman. The bride wore a gown of white tulle, fashioned simply with a yoke of rosepoint lace, and layers of tulle forming the bouffant skirt. Her long tulle veil was arranged in cap effect and caught with orange blossoms. White shoes and hose were worn, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses, forget-me-nots, and lilies-of-the-valley, showered from ferns. Mrs. J. E. Tarshis, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, in a frock of pale pink lace with a matching hat. Her flowers were Butterfly roses and baby's breath. Dr. Moe Nathanson, of Minneapolis, attended the groom. During the signing of the register, Luigi Romanelli played a violin solo, "O Promise Me." Only the immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom were present at a dinner party. Friends of the bride and groom who attended were Mr. and Mrs. H. Greisman, Mr. and Mrs. Egmont L. Frankel, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cohen, all of Toronto; and Miss Marjorie Freedman, Mr. and Mrs. Manny Marshall and Lawrence Cohen, all of Montreal. Dearborn Independent and accepted them as gospel, will realize how deluded they were. Anti-Semitism will not disappear so easily. In the final analysis it draws its nourishment from the orthodox theology which regards the Jew as the villain in the world's greatest tragedy. As long as that remains and is impressed on the plastic souls and minds of young children, the Jew will be an object of scorn and suspicion to his Christian neighbour. Ford's articles but stirred up the seed of hatred planted in the religious schools. Anti-Semitism will not disappear as long as children are taught in their undiscerning years the fiction that Jews killed the founder of Christianity.

History has repeatedly flashed across its stage those who have cursed the Jew. Few of these ever lived to bless him. Ford who has cursed Israel, now blesses him. In his public statement, he admitted the Jew's great contributions to civilization.

To Aaron Sapiro, the Jewish world owes its thanks. Unquestionably he brought to the consciousness of Ford through his famous law suit the injustice that the Dearborn Independent had done to the Jews. Though Sapiro was severely criticized by Jewish leaders, he was instrumental in bringing about Ford's recantation. The chapter Ford has written in American Jewish life commenced sadly but it has ended happily.

relentlessly in the chosen direction, and will not permit them to swerve or compromise. They esteem their personality and attach inordinate value to objects and ideas which have gained the impress of their personality.

Ford is a strong man, and he is obstinate. He has chosen to deal with the question of the presence of the Jewish people from the standpoint of the recognized anti-Semite. Why the biggest automobile producer of America, who has not had his path crossed by Jews in his business dealings should have so soured on the Jews is inexplicable. It is presumable that he had never given the problem of the Jews any serious thought—had never studied their history, or their place in the economy of the world's problems. Somehow he had become obsessed with the notion that the Jews were a menace to the world and he had addressed himself to the task of baiting and hounding them. There are many Americans of wealth who do not love Jews; who bear prejudices against them. But their attitude is passive. They would not think of going out of their way to calumniate and cause harm to the Jews—to the extent of supporting excesses in anti-Semitic countries in Europe. Ford took a stand against Jews. And he became malignant, aggressive. He spent a fortune in disseminating propaganda against them. He achieved a status as the leader of anti-Semitism in the world. He brought to bear the strength of his character and position on his anti-Jewish activities.

In his letter of confession Ford alleges that he personally had never had any part in anti-Jewish campaigns conducted by his hirelings. In this respect Ford is disingenuous. We remember him several years ago, on the occasion of his visit to the Toronto Exhibition as a special guest, airing his pet views on the subject of the Jews to representatives of the local press. He was asked about the disturbances in Ireland. He replied that the Jews were mainly responsible for the situation in Ireland. He saw their hand everywhere wreaking havoc. Ford was not in ignorance of what his employees were doing. He may not have written the vitriolic articles in the Dearborn Independent which bore his name, but he assuredly read some of them, or knew their purport. And he might have figured out that mud-pitching does not do the target any particular good.

Well, this strong man Ford is now a penitent seeking forgiveness from the people whom he has wronged. Why he should have taken this bold course is as puzzling as his first step. The richest man in the world can afford to be arrogant; can afford to be wrong; can afford to do injury to an innocent people. He need not have any conscience. Are there practical, ulterior motives which prompted his action? Again, it seems that Ford is too powerful to have to give up or sell his hobby. If he choose to continue as an anti-Semite he is surely in a position to pay the price. It is a beautiful gesture—this of Ford's. Unlike other men of power he is not too big to admit mistakes; he is not too big to apologize. Ford's act will appeal to the American sense of sportsmanship. The strange man Ford who because of his simplicity had been picked as the apotheosis of the average American's virtues, will now appear to the masses an even grander figure than before—the ideal type of big man who is not proud.

From a practical standpoint Ford's conversion will mean a great deal to the Jewish people. European anti-Semitism will not only lose its main source of financial support, but also the semblance of respectability which the apparent sanction by a prominent American gave it.

In America the repudiation of anti-Semitism by Ford will be decisive in checking the growth of the movement which had its genesis in the post-war hysteria. The bulk of the American people had never allowed itself to be taken in by the preposterous claims of Ford's publicity. But there is no doubt some people who were influenced by the incessant hammering away of the Ford propaganda. Ford's frank recantation will tend to disabuse their minds of their fatuous beliefs.

Ford has spent five years in slandering and reviling us. He has hurt us deeply. His fine letter of apology can never eradicate the wrong he has done our people. But it is welcomed as a sign of the awakening of the sanity of the American people. We do not ask to be loved or flattered. We ask not to be misunderstood or misjudged.

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

Some weeks back I read an editorial in your paper which I read in the Jewish Free Reading Room, Whitechapel. The editorial was a criticism of the Canadian emigration restrictions. The editorial was in the main true; people won't leave this country unless they are down and out. They prefer parish relief. Being out of work for the last four years I have been trying to get to Canada having no people of my own and, as you can understand, no money. I have been trying the government's schemes, have passed the doctor, yet they refuse to accept me with refusal of any explanation. I get no relief or assistance from any source as I refuse to prostitute my manhood. I want work to keep myself. I write this letter in the hope that you may be able to help me. The Jewish Emigration Society of England are willing to assist to Canada provided I can get work or a person who would be willing to act as a friend to me to put me up until I can find work. Perhaps you can put me in touch with the Jewish Farmers' Federation of Canada or get them to assist me to a post. I am most keen on the land, prefer to be with Jews so I can keep in touch with my people and religion. Am prepared to do heavy work as the last four years I have been a docker, navvy, etc., although have experience as store man, ads, canvasser, insurance. The address of the Jewish Emigration Society in England is Mr. Hyam Marks, F.A.J.E., Knowle Green House, Staiens, England. References, etc., concerning myself can be obtained from him, the secretary. Hoping you will forgive the inconvenience of this letter and trusting you will try and help me in my difficulties. Thanking you kindly for your interest on my behalf and trusting to an early and satisfactory reply, I remain yours faithfully,

MARK COHEN.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

As one who takes slightly more than a passing interest in Jewish problems and particularly Jewish problems in Canada, I read with attention in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW of June 24, a letter over the signature of David Sher in the nature of a refutation of an article on separate schools by M. Frank in a previous issue.

It was reasonable to suppose from the caption and the context of Mr. Frank's article that he meant Montreal and the Province of Quebec to be the centre of the experiment of separate schools in America. That is as it should be, for in Montreal the problem is a pressing one that demands immediate action. But in spite of the fact that Mr. Sher cautions us to be honest with ourselves, he does not discuss the situation in the City of Montreal in his letter. It may be that he is not fully conversant with conditions existing there and elsewhere. To clear up certain somewhat erroneous impressions, I seek the courtesy of your valuable space.

We are told by your correspondent that "if a Separate School System is inherently a Godsend, it needs no literary embellishments wherewith it may endear itself in the hearts of an audience." Very well, let us for the moment discard any "literary embellishments" and deal with a few frigid facts. In the Province of Quebec there is really no public school system, and the change if effected would be from "two separate school systems" to three separate school systems. In Belgium there are three and in Switzerland there are six separate school systems, all working successfully. In 1903, a law was enacted in Quebec whereby Jews were to be classed as Protestants for the purpose of education, but as Sir Thomas Roberts said at that time, "We do this, gentlemen, because we must. At no time, however, shall we allow you Jews to be members of our boards or to have responsible positions in offices pertaining to education." And to-day, twenty-four years later, in the thirty "Protestant" public schools in Montreal, there are some 14,000 Jewish children as against 20,000 Protestant children, but not one Jew is permitted on the school board that administers those schools or are Jewish school teachers being employed in schools where Jewish children form 99 per cent. of the pupils. The Supreme Court of Canada ruled last year in the case of Hirsch et al. vs. the Protestant School Board of Montreal that the provincial legislature could not pass legislation obliging the Board of School Commissioners of Montreal to do these things. The court did say, however, that it is within the power of the legislature to establish Separate Schools for persons who are neither Catholics nor Protestants. Under the present state of the Quebec law it is a matter of right for the Jews to attend the Protestant schools of Montreal, but not so in the other municipalities where it is a matter of grace. There is dissatisfaction on both sides on account of the questions of finance and education. The Protestants have asked the Jews to establish their own separate school system in Quebec. The Catholics wish the Jews to take this step because with them separate schools are the norm towards a better citizenship. A great number of the Jews of Quebec desire to establish their own school system because it is a matter of dignity and propriety. They do not wish to retain this inferior educational position. Can these, then, be the "literary embellishments" of which Mr. Sher speaks?

In Ontario, granted, conditions are different and better than those in Quebec—and it is to be remembered that from the Canadian standpoint it is only in Quebec and Ontario that Jews exist in sufficiently large numbers to warrant individual school systems. But even in Ontario a separate school system would be in a great many respects advisable, and it is quite within the realm of possibility that the provincial legislature would pass legislation creating a third panel in Ontario. One wonders at the statement of your correspondent that a separate school system "from the standpoint of the Jew is inherently defective." There is no reason why such institutions could not be made highly successful not only from the standpoint of the Jew but from the standpoint of the community. This province contains Catholic separate schools which produce some of its very finest citizens. In England, there are Jewish separate schools which are functioning quite satisfactorily. There is less friction between Jew and Gentile in England than perhaps in any other country. The headmaster of the Jews' Free School of London declared recently that separate schools in England were responsible for this. There are several graduates of these schools in Toronto and they are quite active in Jewish communal work. As for anti-Semitism, there are more causes for friction at present than if the Jews had their own separate schools. Such being the case, the words "inherently defective" seem particularly inept.

There is a further statement that "No community wants to have its structure based on 'classes'." He believes also that "a country should eradicate rather than perpetuate the foulness and demoralizing aspect of 'class'." Those are strange words to use in a country that has one province that is bilingual and which harbours many different peoples in its bosom, each desiring to retain some of their peculiar traits of individuality. It seems safe to say that if there had been an attempt to suppress the French in Quebec and the Roman Catholic adherents in the other provinces by abolishing separate schools, Canada would never have been the nation that it is to-day. This country is large enough for many types of people to live in harmony, the Jewish people included. A Jewish separate school system would tend to create mutual good will rather than misunderstanding.

Your correspondent in painting a picture of public school life as "a veritable Republic of childhood," forgets one of the most important factors of public school life—the teacher. It is impossible for a teacher—and thus the public school—to be strictly neutral. There is always a certain amount of religious instruction in every classroom. History proves that wherever Jewish children are taught to imbibe the doctrines of Christianity, they tend to drift away from the Jewish faith. There are statistics galore to prove this statement. In Ontario, and much more so in Quebec, the Jewish child is being taught the tenets of Christianity, if not intentionally at least in a veiled and hidden manner. In Montreal, for instance, the Jewish child must attend the Protestant schools, and in these schools a short period is as a rule devoted each day to Scripture reading from the New Testament, events in the life of Christ and memorizing the Lord's prayer. Outside of Montreal, the Jewish child attends either the Protestant or Catholic schools and in the Catholic schools of Quebec there is an even greater religious instruction. These teachings are diametrically opposed in many cases to the principles of Judaism. Then, too, the very atmosphere of the schoolroom is Christian and not Jewish. Imagine the conflict in the formative mind of the child!

As a solution to the problem of the perpetuation of Judaism, your correspondent offers the Talmud Torahs and goes so far as to suggest compulsory attendance at these institutions. The remedy of compulsory attendance may be passed by almost without a word for not only would it be unenforceable but it would antagonize a large section of Jewry. The question of the Talmud Torah itself is more fundamental. In the first place, it cannot cope with the problem of giving the Jewish child a proper Jewish training. Again, the present system of Chadorim is injurious to the health of the children. It has been proven that a child to develop properly must not have more than five or six hours of school a day but as the situation now stands, the Jewish child goes to receive this smattering of Hebrew at a time when he should be in the playground building up his body. Many children are not sent to the Chadorim and they are tending to drift rapidly away from the Jewish faith. It would seem that the remedy for the perpetuation of Judaism is not to be found in the Talmud Torah, but in the establishment of separate schools for the Jewish people.

Mr. Sher asks if education is not a study of "human nature, of character rather than a study of religion." By what process of reasoning he arrives at this conclusion, Mr. Sher does not enlighten us. Since when has religion ceased to be a part, and a very formidable part, of human nature? In the humble opinion of this writer it is the cement of social life. If we were all of one religion, there would be no opposition to the so-called public school. To a Catholic, for instance, religion is life itself in its most sacred aspect. If the Jewish people had a separate school system here, Judaism might be as sacred to almost every Jewish child. The problem of the perpetuation of Judaism would cease to be a problem. The time taken up with the Lord's prayer, etc., could be devoted to Jewish tradition, the Jewish moral code, the painting of a living picture of the great melodrama of the Jewish people throughout the ages. In Quebec the opportunity to do this is knocking. If it will be successful, and every indication points to success, Ontario Jewry could undertake the same task. There is no reason why the spread of Jewish separate schools should not continue to the rest of America for time and time again it has been truly said that the young are the point at which all the hopes of Judaism converge.

HAKOAH HERE AGAIN

Hakoah team, under the management of Arthur Baer, won from all-stars last Saturday. "We started out with twenty-one men," stated Arthur Baer, manager, "but seven or eight of our men were obliged to return to Vienna. Otherwise they would have lost their positions. With what men we had left we won seven out of fourteen games in the United States, tied five and lost two. In Canada we won five, tied three and lost two. We go from here to New York and sail for Vienna early in July." At the Ulster Stadium a picked National League Team from Scottish and Ulster beat the Hakoah tourists by two goals to nil. The game was a fast exhibition of soccer, but on the whole the game was valued for a draw.

BUFFALO WEINTRAUBS LOSE TO BNAI BRITH

Before 6,000 fans at Trinity Park last Monday night, the New York State champions, the Buffalo Weintraubs, lost an extra-inning exhibition game to the local Bnai Brith all-stars. The locals won the game when Sobel, who relieved Wilson to open the tenth, not only struck out six of the seven men to face him, but also drove in Stone with the winning run after two were out in the last half of the eleventh. Fenwick on the mound for the losers struck out fifteen of the locals. Rumac with two singles and Dunkelman with a double being the only ones able to solve his delivery.
